

Updated Statement

Important information about your treatment:

As part of your treatment plan you may be prescribed medication. All prescription medications come with potential side effects; some may be common, some may be rare, and some may be more serious than others.

We recommend that for a complete overview of risks and side effects, you review the information provided from the manufacturer. This can be found on the internet or through written information given when medications are dispensed. You should consult your pharmacist, the manufacturer or our office with any questions about warning or side effects. We encourage you to be educated, and to ask us for clarifications.
